DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 10/23/07 has been entered.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments filed 10/23/07, 8/14/07 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. In response to applicant's argument that the Goux/Storey device does not perform the claimed function of determining the second blood purification performance which is different from the first blood purification performance, a recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. Applicant argues the claimed invention and the prior art invention are structurally different. However, Applicant has not provided features of the claimed invention as compared to features of the prior art, which would render the prior art invention incapable of performing the recited functions.

3. In response to applicant's argument that there is no suggestion to combine the references, the examiner recognizes that obviousness can only be established by combining or modifying the teachings of the prior art to produce the claimed invention where there is some teaching, suggestion, or motivation to do so found either in the references themselves or in the knowledge generally available to one of ordinary skill in the art. See In re Fine, 837 F.2d 1071, 5 USPQ2d 1596 (Fed. Cir. 1988) and In re Jones, 958 F.2d 347, 21 USPQ2d 1941 (Fed. Cir. 1992). In this case, the Examiner has relied on Storey for a teaching of removal of specific substances in order to monitor blood purification performance.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

5. Claims 1-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Goux et al. USPN 5567320 in view of Storey et al. USPN 4202760.

Goux describes a blood treatment device comprising a blood purification element divided into two chambers by a semipermeable membrane 4 whose first chamber 3 is part of a dialysis fluid loop and whose second chamber 2 is part of an extracorporeal blood loop (Figure 1). The device has a fluid supply line 6 for supplying fresh dialysis fluid to the first chamber and a dialysis fluid removal line 8 for removing used dialysis fluid from the first chamber. The device has a control unit 26 and an analysis unit 22. The analysis unit comprises sensors (col. 5, lines 14-17) for measuring a concentration of a first material capable of penetrating the semipermeable membrane. The analysis unit 22 is capable of determining the blood purification performance (col. 5, lines 14-59).

Goux discloses the first material is sodium (col. 5, lines 18-28). Goux does not disclose the device differentiates between two materials namely sodium and one of potassium, glucose, creatinine, calcium, or phosphate. Storey discloses removal of these substances in an apparatus and method for preparation of a hemodialysis solution (col. 5, lines 1-62). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to provide the invention of Goux with the ability to monitor the blood purification of claimed materials for the benefit of returning to the patient blood with a normal concentration of the materials, which Storey teaches is desired (Storey col. 1, lines 45-50). Goux/Storey disclose the sensor is a downstream sensor and upstream sensor (col. 5, lines 65-67; col. 6, lines 19-31). The device further comprises a dialysis fluid preparation unit 7.

The limitations directed to the operation and measurements of the device are directed to an intended use of the article. Intended use must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. See In re Casey, 152 USPQ 235 (CCPA 1967) and In re Otto, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963). If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim limitations.
